Quinnipiac

BOBCATS

2008-09 Record: 18-11

2008-09 NEC Finish: 11-7, t-3rd

2009-10 Projected Finish: 5th

One to Watch

The game's timeliness and the matchup's history make the late-February meeting between the Bobcats and Hawks a can't-miss. Quinnipiac and Monmouth have split a pair of regular season meetings in each of the past two years, but the latter has gotten the better of this NEC rivalry when it comes to postseason play. MU was the culprit behind Quinnipiac's early exit from the NEC Tournament in both 2007 and 2009. Both teams will likely be jockeying for postseason position when they meet on Feb. 25.

One to Remember

On its way to an 8-1 season start, Quinnipiac took down intrastate rival, and regional power, Hartford. Coached by former UConn great Jennifer Rizzotti, Hartford has earned a NCAA berth in three of the last five seasons. The Bobcats knocked off the Hawks by a double-digit margin only weeks after Hartford downed nationally-ranked Duke, which held the No. 14 spot in the season's final Top 25 Poll.

Season Preview

Quinnipiac lost an awful lot when Erin Kerner and Brianna Rooney graduated, but that's no reason to not believe in the Bobcats. Approaching her 200th career win, Tricia Fabbri has coached Quinnipiac to winning records and NEC Tournament berths in each of the past seven seasons. If there is a way to compensate for the loss of Kerner's 1,799 career points and Rooney's two NEC Defensive Player of the Year awards, Fabbri will find it.

"I feel that we are very talented and have good depth, but we are just untested," said Quinnipiac's head coach who has amassed a 195-196 career record in 14 years at the helm.

It will help to have Felicia Barron back in uniform after the young guard lost a great deal of her freshman season to injury. Helping the Bobcats to a 6-1 start to the 2008-09 season, Barron averaged 8.0 points over her first seven collegiate contests before going down with an injury one minute into the NEC opener against Monmouth last Dec. 6. "We've moved forward since April with Felicia as our floor general. She's done a nice job and is a real talent," Fabbri said.

Senior Kathleen Neyens and sophomore Jacinda Dunbar bring a combination of size and athleticism to the lineup. The former is the Bobcats' leading returning scorer (7.7 ppg) and rebounder (5.3 rpg). Meanwhile, Dunbar comes off a rookie campaign during which she made 18 starts and averaged 4.9 points and 4.4 boards over 18.8 minutes per game. Then, there's the return of junior center Courtney Kaminski, who missed all of last year due to injury. Playing in all 30 games as a sophomore in 2007-08, she averaged 8.7 points and 5.0 rebounds over 21.8 minutes per contest. "It's really nice to have her [Kaminski's] 6'3" presence and her ability to shoot the three real well," commented Fabbri. "She gives us an inside presence that we were missing."

A trio of freshmen led by local product Ryann Simmons highlight Fabbri's latest recruiting class. The 5-foot-9 guard, who was an all-state talent at Connecticut's Kolbe Cathedral, has made quite an impression on her collegiate head coach. "All three ladies have really done a nice job and haven't been overwhelmed at all with the transition to college," said Fabbri. "Ryann is our most raw-talented, best athlete. She is explosive and can make a major contribution."

NEC - toid

Quinnipiac has averaged 19.4 wins per season over the past five years, all under head coach Tricia Fabbri. The veteran coach, who oversaw the program's transition into the Northeast Conference back in 1998, has coached her team into the NEC Tournament during all but one (2000) of Quinnipiac's 11 seasons as a league member. The Bobcats won their first-ever NEC regular season crown in 2008, but are still in search of their first tournament title.
